

From Editor's Desk

Dear Readers, Greetings!

Thank you very much for the overwhelming response. Indeed it's all with pleasure we coordinate with your scientific publication process in a smooth way. We received many inquiries about the delay, that's to maintain the peer review process in a more professional way. Scrutinizing the articles and categorization, plagiarism check all consumes lot of time. We meticulously do the pre-publication works properly. SCOPUS indexing status our journal, and publication ethics need to followed at each and every steps.

We also sincerely thank all subscribers, for making IJCED as their choice as it reflects the high quality exist in our Journal. We support the medical fraternity, gone for universal protest against the recent unlawful events happened to a dedicated resident. We need to show our solidarity in ensuring women empowerment, and harassments, and justice to the affected family. We all need to take pledge to respect humanity, unite while our profession is at risk, while celebrating our Independence Day. Natural calamities requires, a unique vision for a timely care. Lots of medical students, NGOs joined hands with state Governments to save the sufferers. Global warming is not only a threat alert given by WHO, the consequences will me much more severe than seasonal heavy rainfall, flood and lanslides. It's time to move towards green revolution, pollution free planet earth.

We encourage all the Deans, administrative faculties, Medical Education Unit, teachers and residents to extend you support by subscribing our journal in College libraries and departments.

We are looking forward for innovative concepts in successfully curing the difficult to manage dermatoses. Whatever is relevant to dermatology, cosmetology, aesthetics, paediatric and geriatric dermatology can get published. Recent advances in dermatology therapeutics, therapeutic trials are more frequently cited.
